The Institut Barcelona d’Estudis Internacionals (IBEI) was created in 2004 as a joint initiative between five public universities in the Barcelona metropolitan area to promote postgraduate training and research in international studies. Twelve years later, IBEI has consolidated itself, both in Spain and abroad, as a leading graduate school and research institute.

This year 2016, we confirmed accreditation of the masters’ programmes currently offered, and already started to disseminate the goals defined in IBEI 2015-2020 strategic plan. This allowed to a significant booster in the development of the institute, introducing new programmes and activities, also expanding our research impacts. It is worth to highlight the progressive consolidation of the Master’s in International Security, and the initial launch of the Master’s in International Development, with a great success.

The quality, motivation and involvement of our students is probably the greatest asset we have. They benefit of IBEI’s teaching philosophy are small classes and seminar-style teaching, that contributes to student-faculty interaction. Close links between research projects currently developed by IBEI scholars and committed students collaborating in multiple research activities facilitates also the emergence of a community of learning and deliberation among all IBEI members. The opportunity to contrast different perspectives, sensibilities and values with people from around the world within and outside the classroom is an extraordinary experience, especially when studying and researching international affairs.

Our aim is to turn IBEI into one of the major graduate schools of international studies in Europe. We have already made many advances, but still there is a lot to do. IBEI needs to keep strong professional, personal and intellectual ties with a variety of stakeholders and academic networks to promote thinking globally from Barcelona. In this annual report for 2016 we invite you to learn more about IBEI, the partnership opportunities we offer, and the ongoing developments.

The Teaching Model

The teaching model at IBEI involves the following components:

- Courses delivered in ECTS format
- Intensive use of virtual campus and digital documents
- Small groups in electives and practical seminars
- Personal tutor for each student
- Studying in an active research environment
- Possibility of attending:
  - Conferences at IBEI, UPF and CIDOB
  - Research Workshops /Seminars at IBEI
Assessment of curricular internships

Curricular internships are subject to a predefined and standardised assessment system. The final mark is based on two reports:

1. Report from the student’s supervisor in the organisation
2. Five-page personal report written by the student

The student must send the final report to the IBEI academic coordinator of internships by email within one month upon completing the internship.

The IBEI academic coordinator of internships is responsible for determining if the student passes the course.

The final mark is the average of the supervisor’s report and the personal report.

Internship Programme

The objective of professional internships is to acquaint students with the tasks and challenges involved in the daily practices of organisations and professionals in international relations and security.

These internships may be curricular or extracurricular. In either case, the student must be enrolled in a Master’s Programme offered by IBEI. IBEI offers its own curricular internships.

These are managed directly through collaboration agreements already in place with various companies and institutions. Professional internships do not establish a connection or work relationship between the student and the company or institution.

Enrolment Process

Curricular internships make up part of the curriculum of each Master’s Programme.

Students are required to enrol in the elective course titled “Professional Internship”, worth 4 ECTS credits.

This internship is thus part of the 60 credits necessary to complete the Master’s programme.

Internships are required to have a minimum of 120 hours and a maximum of 900 hours.

Selection Process

Organisations working in collaboration with IBEI send descriptions of available internships, which will be forwarded to students who have requested information about the internships IBEI offers. Students may then notify IBEI if they are interested in any.

The final selection of the candidates will be made by the organisation. The internships will be formalised through an annex of the Internship Agreement signed by IBEI, the organisation and the selected student.

Executive Education

Executive Master’s Degree in Diplomacy and Foreign Affairs

With the aim of building capacities in Catalan institutions in the field of foreign affairs, the Public Diplomacy Council of Catalonia and the Secretariat for Foreign and EU Affairs agreed to launch a supplementary study programme in the field of diplomacy and external affairs, intended for employees of Catalonia’s civil service with international experience.

The Executive Master’s in Diplomacy and Foreign Affairs is an innovative post-graduate programme, tailored to the needs of a 21st century public administration. It is designed to prepare for the management of a dynamic and flexible foreign policy and for meeting the challenges of an interdependent world in the communications era. The 10 month training programme focuses on Economy, Communications and Negotiation, without neglecting more traditional areas such as International Law, European Affairs and the History of International Relations.

02 ALUMNI
Mentorship Programme

This is the third year of the IBEI Alumni Mentorship Programme. The programme has proven to be a success so far. In the two previous editions more than eighty potential students were asked to be mentored by alumni.

The IBEI provides students with formal questions, such as housing, professors, courses, deadlines etc. However, the Institute is not able to respond to more substantive questions that the potential student may want to clarify.

Through the Mentorship Programme the new students gain a better insight of the daily functioning of the Institute, the city of Barcelona, and many other aspects of the IBEI experience.

Almost 100 IBEI Alumni have participated as a mentor and more than 80 new students have been inscribed to be mentees.

What our Alumni say about us

"The most interesting part of it was debating topics and exchanging views with people from diverse origins and having different perspectives. I think that was really enriching."

Lluís Torrent
Master’s in International Relations 2008-2009
Director at United Explanations and Expert in Climate Change

"There was something really special about that time, no doubt. Your biggest worry was getting to class on time. You had an in-built community of friends from all across the world; that’s hard to find in the ‘real world’.

Hardy Giezendanner
Erasmus Mundus Master’s in Public Policy 2011-2012
Managing Partner at Europe Conflict and Security Consulting Ltd.

"Most IR students tend to think about working for governments, international organizations or businesses, or NGOs, but keep in mind that working at philanthropic institutions can be really interesting as well."

Léonie van Tongeren
Master’s in International Relations 2008-2009
Special Assistant to the Regional Director for Europe at Open Society Foundations

“The relatively small size of the institute enabled me to develop close relationships with my peers. Although I’m happy to see many of them succeeding in their career choices, I miss the days when we were coming up with the best excuses for being late to class.”

Periša Ražnatović
Erasmus Mundus Master’s in Public Policy 2011-2012
Director of Lifelong Learning for Worldreader

“I remember often the type of exercises we use to be taught at our courses and seminars in IBEI. Mainly, on those based on the casebook method, where we as students could read specific cases, topics or projects since it stimulated us to develop analytical skills and to induce/deduce the main concept for the subject matter.”
